The Women's Section in the Central Media Office of Hizb ut Tahrir Presents:
A Global Campaign and International Women's Conference

Al-Khilafah & Education Reviving the Golden Age

The Muslim lands were once the centre of learning for the world. The academic excellence of their educational institutions attracted the best academics and thinkers from across the globe and provided a first-class education to thousands of male and female students. This generated an abundance of scholars and scientists and an era of great innovation and discovery, creating a glorious civilization that became the super-power of the world. This unrivalled and pioneering education system was born from the Islamic rule of the glorious Khilafah State (Caliphate) which gave great importance and support to the acquiring and spreading of knowledge as prescribed by the Qur'an and Sunnah. It was also a state which led the world in women's education. However, upon the destruction of the Khilafah in 1924, all this changed!

Today, the Muslim world is suffering from an 'Education Crisis' of significant proportions. The region is plagued with substandard provision of good quality schools, colleges, universities and other educational facilities; high illiteracy; poor training and pay of teachers; ineffective teaching methods; poor access to comprehensive education in Islam, stifling scholarship in the Deen; and inadequate opportunities for research and specialization.

All this has crushed the educational aspirations of the future generation of this Ummah, led to a significant brain-drain to the West, and contributed to stagnation in progress and development in the Muslim world.

This Education Crisis has been caused by the imposition of colonial based education systems in the Muslim lands since the destruction of the Khilafah. These systems were never aimed at fulfilling the educational aspirations of the Ummah, or elevating the academic standards of societies, or achieving progress and development in the Muslim lands. Rather they were simply a means employed by the colonialists to instill secular liberal values in the future generations of the Muslims and take them away from their Deen to further their colonial objectives in the region. Their aim was to colonize the minds of young Muslims and enslave them to the Western culture and system. Successive generations of Western-backed secular leaderships in the Muslim world continued to implement this regressive education system and introduced further secular reforms – an agenda which has intensified in recent years under the false guise of preventing ‘extremism’.

Alongside all this, decades of poor organization and under-investment in education due to flawed capitalist systems and policies, as well as visionless regimes that failed to give education the importance it deserves, compounded the ‘Education Crisis’.

There now needs to be an 'Education Revolution' in the Muslim lands!

This important campaign and conference will seek to:

- Expose and counter the current intense agenda to further secularise education in the Muslim world!
- Address the causes of the 'Education Crisis' in the Muslim lands!
- Present a vision of the Education Policy of the Khilafah and how it will practically build a first-class education system which will revive a golden generation of scholarship and create a glorious civilization once again!
- Clarify the true educational rights guaranteed to women under Islamic rule!
- Provide guidance on Islamic Education of Muslim children in the absence of the Khilafah to build Muslim youth who are equipped to face the challenges to their Deen in the 21st century!

We call you to follow and support this important campaign!
